Deadline for Early Bird Registration:	15 February 2023
Announcement of Congress Program:	15 April 2023
Congress Dates:	28-30 April 2023

Tekirdağ Namık Kemal University is organizing the 3rd International Congress on Academic Studies in Philology (ICOASP) with the cooperation of five member universities of Association of Thrace Universities (TUB-Trakya Üniversiteler Birliği). The congress aims to bring together leading academic researchers and scholars to exchange and share their experiences on all aspects of Philology.

Philology is more topical than ever in our age. By providing reflections on the relationship between language, literature, culture and history, it gives answers to the most basic questions and problems of thought in contemporary global and digital culture. As philologist Harry Lönnroth states that it is “timeless, humanistic and interdisciplinary.” The third philology congress aims to connect scholars representing different academic backgrounds with its breadth and interdisciplinarity that are so much needed in the academic world today. The congress invites both online and in person presentations.

Scope:

The congress provides a premier interdisciplinary platform for researchers, practitioners and educators to present and discuss the most recent concerns on areas of:

- World Languages and Literatures
- Ancient Languages and Literatures
- Comparative Literature
- Applied Linguistics
- Translation Studies

Submission:

Please send your Abstract (250 words) with your affiliation and a short Bionote (50 words) to icoasp@nku.edu.tr under the subject heading of “Icoasp 2023 Submission” until 22 December 2022.

Submission Rules and Publication

- Abstracts must be written in Turkish, English, French or German.
- All submitted abstracts will be double blind peer-reviewed before acceptance.
- Abstracts accepted to be presented in the congress will be published in a Book of Abstracts with an ISBN.
- Full text submissions of presented papers will be received by 15 June 2023 and published in a Book of Proceedings with an ISBN.
